Speaking to a panel discussion on health services sponsored by the Victoria Mental Health Association and the mental health committee of the local Council of Churches, Goodacre said the program will begin April 1 in Vancouver.

Goodacre said he has just received word of a $30,000 research grant for the project from the federal government. The remaining $90,000 needed is included in the provincial health department estimates for this year which have not yet been approved. CONTROL GROUP

The project will involve 240 equally sick patients who normally would be admitted to Riverview. Half will be admitted as a control group. The others will be kept in their homes or placed in approach boarding homes.

All will be kept under constant supervision by a team of psychiatrists, psychiatric nurses and social workers. "The families and landladies will be trained to recognize an approaching crisis and call for treatment," said Goodacre.

The project was enthusiastically approved by panelists Dr. G. Scott Wallace and Dr. Larry H. Pazder, a psychiatrist.

He compared mental illness to bronchitis. "If you treat it at once the patient is cured. If you let it go pneumonia will develop." The medical teams will supervise the patients in the homes and see they receive treatment to prevent a crisis," he said.

The Society for Pollution and Environmental Control has organized a demonstration against the proposed shipment of oil by tanker. Some 100 people are expected to picket the Cherry Point site on Monday.

"This is still the best and most efficient manner of operation. A search plane has only to call in the co-ordinates and we can tell if it is an old site," said Bissell.

Since 1940, 454 pins dot the map. And this does not count the 43 known crashes which have never been found.

"But eventually they will be located. As more prospectors, oil company geologists and trappers invade the, wilderness they will find them."

Bissell says there were 230 people on the 43 missing aircraft. One of them was a U.S. military craft with a large number of persons on board.

Just recently, a hiker walk-ing off the Alaska highway found a P-38 reported missing during wartime. It was less than a mile from the highway and the skeleton of the pilot was still in the wrecked coekuit.

A reader suggests that provincial polities is too serious a matter to be treated lightly in any fanciful or whimsical fashion, as has been done here occasionally.

room politics is a reality. It is not always prudent or possible to report on the power plays and unofficial decisions that direct a city's government. Sometimes because the happenings can't pos itively be established, sometimes because the stories are so julcy, no sensible reporter would risk libel charges or his political con-tacts by trying to write them.

The problem poses an ironic conundrum for the news media whose justification in life is supposed to be telling what's going on, not hiding it. But there you are.

The governments in and around Victoria are no exception, though as far as this reporter is aware, nothing in the way of a major scandal has taken place in the last six months.

FORMAL DEBATE

The greatest portion of juicy unreported material is mainly gossipy, though illuminating. It provides insights into the personalities and character of the politicians and officials who run the public business—insights that the public are entitled to

To take a harmless example. Ald. Tom Christie will probably do little in the future to make political life easy for his colleague, Ald. Harold Olafson. At a recent dinner reception, Olafson levelled at Christie an unprintable description of what he thought to be Christie's attitude in supporting some of Ald. Peter Pollen's views.

Receiving abuse is a thank-less but inevitable activity for politicians, and perhaps in an era of rhetorical bankruptey, the frustrations have to be let loose behind closed doors.

A resignation has been offered, "highway robbery" has been detected, and vicious quarrels have all taken place in the last few weeks amongst people whose names appear in the news columns every day.

Probably the liveliest confrontation of the past year was one between provincial Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and city hall representatives who have been trying—and are still unsuccessful—to get temporary permission to use an extended sewage outfall at Clover Point while a treatment plant system is devised. The name-calling apparently did no good. It probably made things worse.

Morse.

A fairly well-known local gentleman conversant with both local and national politics remarked recently that city politicians, in their innocence, provide the last opportunity for other persons to empty the public tills.

But who needs to break the law when with a little persuasion in the right places at city hell, a man can walk away with a fist full of legal dollars, leaving only inflated land prices in his wake?

All over Victoria, the frame and stucco walk-up apartment blocks bear witness to the millions of dollars—some of it absolutely tax-free—collected by developers who turned astute rezoning applications into what they call a "spinoff" land markup of several hundred or more per cent.

Club at Cadboro Bay has very understandably raised protests, not only among nearby residents but much farther afield. The point at improve its winter facilities- ect is clearly something to avoid. although the familiar institution must soon consider the over-all question of what its maximum size is to be in this location. It is the means by which it is planned to give protection to moored boats that has roused strong objections.

It is difficult to follow the reasoning of club spokesmen who argue for the requested piling breakwater. If this structure were already in existence from some earlier time, there would surely be a strong popular campaign to remove it at almost any cost. It will undoubtedly be an eyesore of monumental proportions and a major error of judgment in what is one of the outstanding beauty spots of Greater Victoria.

The motives of the club are understandable. Sailing is a major recreation and sport in this part of the world. But those members who support the plan have chosen a means without regard to the effect on the environment—this would be visual pollution of a lasting and ugly type. Some other solution—even a more expensive one from a monetary point of view-or some other location, should be devised.

The present plan is too great an infringement on the rights of the public. Even apart from its visual aspects, there is no assurance that the breakwater would not cause harmful effects on the tides and currents of the bay, with consequent results to the beach. The commended for her announced effects on entrapment of polluted waters in the bay—already a matter of concern—have apparently received no conclusive study. The estimate was contained in a statement issued by Mr. Jack Davis, who is soon to become Canada's first Environment Minister, in connection with a clean air bill being introduced into the Commons.

Most provinces have air pollution standards and the impact of the clean air bill will be to establish a federal presence in this important area and to set uniform national guidelines. There seems to be a tacit understanding at all levels of government that the public will not tolerate delays in imposing pollution control merely because of constitutional quarrels. Specifically, Ottawa will be engaged in strengthening the existing system of federal-provincial monitoring stations, in carrying out research, and in directly supervising industry that does fall within its jurisdiction, such as railways, airlines and shipping companies. Federal facilities are to become models of clean-air practice.

The problem of national coordination of all types of pollution control remains, but Mr. Davis' new bill may herald a return to common wick, which have no comprehensive sense by its competent pursuit of a laws dealing with air pollution. goal which pollticians at all levels Presumably, these latter provinces can quietly accept. Mr. Tetlow cites the possibility, seen by the author, of an America "gone fascist" as the outcome of the present conflict between the new and the old American cultures.

Reviewing the Slater argument on the point, Mr. Tetlow presents the picture of the old culture, not rotten but wildly malfunctioning, refusing to fall of its own weight, while the young do not know how to dismantle it successfully. He notes that those elements in society with the strongest commitment to military pursuits and old-culture principles

Add to this the law-and-order philosophy and the conceivable idea of a strong man, in the Hitler or Mussolini mold, stepping forward to lead the country out of the morass, and the hypothesis becomes grim.

There are other avenues for development, of course, but when thoughtful men visualize such a possibility, even without supporting it or seeing it as inevitable, the concept is chilling in itself chilling for the United States and

Such a man, judging from the parliamentary record, is Paul St. Pierre, MP (though to tell the truth, it was a bad day for Canadian journalism when this best of books and movies as well, left the front page for the back bench, the sparkling prose for the cranky fine print of Hansard).

At any rate, while everyone else in At any rate, while everyone ease in Ottawa overlooked it, the man from Chilcotin quickly grasped a certain interesting fact. It is that a Liberal government, dedicated in high principle and ardent piety to the ideal of free trade, has begun to move stealthily in the convention like S. Diame. the opposite direction. Mr. St. Pierre, so far as I can see, was the only Liberal to protest this sudden swerve and realize where it could lead Canada. He stood

ON the Chilcotin plateau of British Columbia the big sky is clear. The air, filtered through the key pinnacles of the Coast Range, is fresh and spicy. In this lonely land, free of the city's smog and clamor, me n who had devised a cuming system of quotas against foreign textiles, was saddened to hear that anyone could suspect him of illiberal, protectionist leanings. Poor Mr. Pepin deserves our sympathy. Much more sadness awaits him as Canadians begin to share Mr. St.

> To be sure, the latest restriction on To be sure, the latest restriction on competitive imports is a small one. It is excused by the government, like the illegitimate baby in the ancient tale, because of its size, But Mr. St. Pierre knows—to use the clean, literal English of Chilocin — that small bestars often were lated large upon that the descent grow into large ones, that the descent into the storm cellar of the tariff starts, like all journeys, with a single step:

Past Was Different

Where, one is impelled to ask, were the other Liberals when the descent got under way? Twenty years ago, or less, a Liberal government attempting some disguised restriction on imports, at the cost of the Canadian consumer, would have faced a revolt in its caucus and a dangerous battle in the House. The western members, at least, would have risen in fury. Why, I can recall the Mackenzie King government embarrassed and split because it had quietly adjusted its customs regulations to discourage imports of some obscure canned fruit—not because they amounted to sputhing but because they represented to anything but because they represented a principle and a direction.

Today, apparently, we have advanced beyond that primitive way of thinking. We say, and the prime minister said it with moving eloquence at Singapore, that inconvenience and loses the government no votes in the manufacturing centres of Ontario and Quebec.

This kind of tortured morality does not convince a plain man from Chilcotin, where they take facts, and shirts, quite seriously. But the government, though nettled by a backbencher who had the impudence to speak his mind, kept its temper and gave a gentle reply to Mr. St. Pierre.

Surely, it said, he could not suppose that any uneconomic Canadian industry would be shielded from healthy competition? Surely he believed that the textile quotas would be withdrawn unless the inefficient concerns reorganized them-selves and became efficient? To imagine that the government might violate its own sacred doctrine for political purposes was just too much for Mr. Pepin. He was saddened.

of the story. The tariff issue, once the delicate gravity centre of politics, had almost ceased to be an issue at all and the West, always the victim of eastern tariffs, gave up the fight as if it no longer mattered. And yet the Economic Council of Canada has told us over and over again, in dull, unanswerable reports read by hardly anyone, that the issue is as important as ever, perhaps more

Above all, it will have to exploit its natural strengths and minimize natural weaknesses if it is to employ its people in the long run. And this means, despite the present indifference, that it will soon have to face the old, neglected tariff issue in new versions.

Not Naive

Fresh from the simple, factual land of Chilcotin, Mr. St. Pierre seems to have done his homework, read his history and is not enfeebled by the hothouse air of Ottawa. He is not opposed to the textile industry and appreciates its difficulties. He is not even opposed to the quotas if they are used temporarily, until the industry learns how to reorganize and either, to believe that the quotas will necessarily be so used, when all our past experience argues to the contrary. When he was talking to the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education at Toronto a month ago, Dr. Arthur J. R. Smith, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, gave gentle emphasis to a point other competent Canadian economists had made before him. "The escalating educational costs of the 1950's were not sustainable under the best economic conditions, and would have encountered resistance eventually." Dr. Smith said, "but the sharp economic slowdown of 1970 has had the effect of suddenly focusing sharply increased attention on all areas of very rapidly rising expenditures, including education."

In layman's language, this means the public, the taxpayer, is saying, and saying with increased vehemence, "We can't afford it."

Pruitt-Igoe Housing Development in St. Louis

High-Rise Hell for the Poor

ASSOCIATED PRESS

"We have this war on poverty and we got our ships out and we got one that's lost. It's sunk, let's face it. Write it off," said a Romney aide.

Romney is expected to decide within the next two weeks whether to accept the recommendation or try once more to find a formula that will make the Pruitt-Igoe project a fit place in which to live.

Repeated earlier efforts to find such a formula, including a $5 million modernization program and a a $5 million program of special social services, failed to stem a tide of murder, robbery, rape and vandalism.

In 1969, police reported 10 murders, 14 rapes and 129 assaults at the project. Vandalism costs at one point were running at 3E,700 a day.

The latest murder victim was an eight-year-old girl, found slain and sexually molested before Christmas in one of the complex's hundreds of deserted apartments.

Only 600 families now live in Pruitt-Igoe, which was built to accommodate 2,800. To simplify security and maintenance they are huddled together — like disaster survivors — in the few buildings that remain relatively

There is another way of bringing the expenditure and dividends into better balance — by reducing costs.

— by reducing costs.

If this results solely in trimming off the fat, eliminating extravagance and weeding out the inefficient, then society has little cause for concern. A problem arises, however, over the definition of fat, extravagance and inefficiency. Who decides?

There's not much validity these days in the old saying that "the ideal college is Mark Hopkins on one end of a log and a student on the other." Even Canada's defence colleges don't justify a one-to-one teacher-pupil ratio Louis Civic Alliance for Housing, a labor-led tandem of tenant and civic groups now managing public housing in St. Louis.

The Alliance decided a week ago that the only solution was demolition.

Demolition costs would be about $3.5 million. Contruction of 900 replacement units on the site near downtown $1. Louis could run as, high as another $22 million. Estimated cost of repairing the project is $39 million.

The Alliance, which assumed operation of public housing in St. Louis after a 1969 rental strike, decided on demolition after more than a year of attempting to stabilize conditions in

In the mid-1950s, Pruitt-Igoe was hailed as an architectural breakthrough against the cost-imposed barriers to building decent housing for the poor in central cities.

Can't Afford It

"It's got an ice rink, a 23-foot by 40-foot community room and a swimming pool, out our kids can't use it because we can't afford it," Mrs. Card says.

Perhaps the biggest barrier between public housing tenants and residents on the "outside" is the way each group regards the other.

The issue of discrimination — whether it's real or imagined — is raised again and again by tenants.

"There is a stigma attached."

"There is a stigma attached to public housing, and when you get this, you run into a brick wall," says Mrs. Card.

"We're not accepted by our own community association." School children, says Mrs. Card, face similar problems.

'Damn Rough'

The last is where Dorothy Day's most measurable success has come — in the houses of hospitality now run by her followers in about a dozen inner-cities. This may be partly because tenants themselves are becoming more active in fighting for improvements in living conditions.

that the CDC will not be "a buyer of last resort" of companies threatened with foreign takeover. But this is confusing. If the CDC DOES BUY shares which are about to be sold to the Yanks, then it IS a "buyer of last resort." If it does NOT buy, the Yanks will, and its protective function is of no use.

If all the taxpayers put up the money, will they not expect equitable regional investment by the CDC? Would the CDC, for political reasons, have had to buy Ryerson Press (for instance) even if it were unprofitable? What happens at election time if two million Canadians have

Sale of Publishing Firm Opposed

In explaining how they feel, the people concentrate on a few basic principles. Those who think the U.S. should not be publishing textbooks for Canadian pupils, think, in the main, that we are too dominated by the U.S. already, and that further incursions into our country are dangerous. Close to this, is another basic belief that Canada should produce her own textbooks, as we have the facilities to do so. Others, however, who say they are not bothered by this sale, are of the opinion that nothing can be done about it, anyway, or feel that U.S. textbooks are just as good as ours, Very Canadian textbooks should be written and published here to preserve our culture and help unemployment; bias would be shown in history; we have the facilities to publish our own 49%

We're dictated to enough by the U.S. now; they are creeping in everywhere; profits from our textbooks should not go to the U.S. 38

Other reasons 22

Can't say why 13

(Some gave more than one reason)

Mildly Concerned (28%)
We're different from the U.S.; textbooks might show U.S. bias; we must guard our culture; our children should be educated with our own textbooks.
We must guard against more U.S. control in this country; we have enough now
Don't like it, but it makes no real difference where textbooks are published; U.S. textbooks are good; governments could check contents; our cultures are the same
Can't saw why

Not Concerned At All (26%)
It's only a printing job; government could control contents; our, education is the same in both countries; makes no difference where books are published.
Have no children of school age, so not concerned; not worried about U.S. influence here; not my problem.
Other reasons

Do you ever doubt the sun will rise in the morning?

Even if rain or fog hide its rays, you know it's still there. You don't doubt this because you are familiar with the laws governing the earth's relationship to the sun.

In the same way, each of us could eliminate much fear and doubt from our lives if we understood the laws governing man's relationship to God. Hear James Pike, of tell how effectively people have been able to act, even in a grave crisis, by listening to God's direction.

Victoria and Vancouver Island Multiple Selecosis Seciety

COLLAPSED BUILDING in Port Jervis, N.Y., claimed the lives of four people Friday and caused 21 injuries.

It costs $3300, but look what you don't get.

Youdon't get a conventional bench seat.

You get bucket seats designed by orthopaedic surgeons.

They're specially contoured to go in where you go in and out where you go out.

Result: they reduce driving fafigue.
So you feel better. (And if you feel better, you drive better.) OVI YYMIG I You don't get a radiator. The VW 411 is, after all, a Volkswagen. So you don't get a water pump, or hoses, or winter changeover bills, because its aluminum-magnesium engine is cooled by air.

You don't get an ordinary suspension.

The 411's rear suspension was designed by the Porsche people. (You'll find a similar system on the Porsche racing cors.)
Instead of a rigid axle, it's double-jointed. A factor that improves steering and handling so much it's been called the best suspension system in the world.

You don't get a big bump in the middle.

Because you don't get a driveshaft had you don't get a driveshaft because the engine's in the rear.

This means front seat passengers don't get a Great Divide; rear seat passengers don't get a knee-jamming hummock.

You don't get a carburetor.

Which means that you don't get carburetor problems like flooding, icing and stalling. Instead, you get a fuel injection system controlled by a computer.

The lowest branch is on the letthand side, the next grows towards the observer; number three extends to the right, while the top branch is on the opposite side.

This arrangement puts each branch in the clear with no overlapping, no two branches coming from the trunk in close proximity, therefore no weak points to give way when a drop of fruit (or wet snow) has to be carried by the tree.

The gardener who fails to build this basic scaffold the first year will have many problems later with overlapping and crowded branches that have to be removed, a crowded head that excludes light and air to the benefit of diseases and pests, and a weak branch system that breaks under stress of weight or wind. CITY SAVINGS & TRUST COMPANY - 1030 West Georgia S Vancouver 5, B.C.

It is surprising how many gardeners think a branch changes its position in relation to the ground at the tree grows. Any branch which starts two feet above soil level will remain at that height even when the tree grows to 50 or 100 feet.

By JACK BEASTALL

*10*10*1 If you don't want a branch at that height, cut it off while it is only a small shoot. The same applies to any other shoot that starts from the trunk in succeeding years.

It is better for both gardener and tree to remove a tiny shoot than to cut out large branches later and upset the delicate balance between roots, top growth and fruit crop.

Pruning of Young Tree Key

To Successful Fruit Growing

"Spare the rod and spoil the child" was the often repeated quotation in grandfather's era. To parephrase, spare the pruners on a young fruit tree and it will never be a tree of any great value.

Our frugal natures make us want the most for our money, and the gardener selecting a young fruit tree exhibits this trait.

He will usually pick the He will usually pick the specimen with the most branches, not realizing that only four or five of those branches must remain after the first pruning.

In the drawing above, C1 represents a tree as purchased, and C2 the same tree after its first pruning.

Four of the best positioned tranches have been selected, While difficult to indicate in the sketch, these branches are disposed around the trunk like steps of a spiral stair-the previous season, because the growth buds in the middle are much stronger than those near the tip therefore will produce a stronger branch.

Tips for Home Gardeners

The leader, or top of the trunk, is pruned in the same way to build a solid trunk to support the branch system.

Note in Cl that the budding point at the base of the trunk on all dwarf and semi-dwarf trees is two inches above soil level. Cheek your tree, and replant on firm soil if the distance is less.

It is important to the health of the tree, and to obtaining the required results' from pruning, that the cuts be properly made.

In Al the cut is too far

If three cuts are made as in A5, the first half way through from the under side, the second a few inches further out to remove the branch, and the third close to the trunk to remove the stub, chances of disease are lessened.

When pruning bearing trees, one must understand the fruiting habit of the particular tree and take care to pre-serve fruit buds or fruiting

The novel, and we'll use that for want of a better word, swings through five inter-connected sections of narrative that blend history, the mythos of Black Africa and the journalism of events into a skill-fully established sense of cosmos that is both gripping and frightening. Godfrey changes landscapes with ease, both geographical and psychological, and the narrative alips into the deserts of Mall where The New Ancestors submerge into the old surrealism of gnyth, parable and metaphor. ## Car Exhaust Law Useless Without Testing Machines

CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Some ironic truths about the difficulty of stopping air pollution from car exhaust are hitting home now that the laws to prevent pollution are in effect.

This is also borne out by service personnel in local car dealerships. One major dealer wanted to buy a testing machine for his service department but the idea fell through when it was realized the machine would probably be obsolete before it was paid for.

Further, until the specifica-tions of the testing station's e q u ipment are available, there seems to mechanics little point in testing cars for ore ook, no-ine-ira-h a exhaust.

If exhaust testing took three minutes per car at the station in Saanich, the time spent on each car would double to six minutes, slicing in half the station's capacity. Even a one-minute test of exhaust fumes would slow down the drill by a third. The cost of increasing the size and capacity of the station, therefore, would have station, therefore, would have to be weighed against the probability of an adequate testing device coming to light

There have been understandable arguments recently that no cost is too great when it comes to cleaning up the environment, but these arguments bog down when it comes to deciding who should pay the cost. Should a big and elaborate testing station be are hitting home now that the laws to prevent pollution are in effect.

One such truth came to light last week when Ray Hadfield, superintendent of B.C.'s motor vehicles branch, contirmed that despite the law requiring all new cars to carry exhaust controls, as of Jan. I the province can't find a machine to properly test them.

And it's the testing, far more than the mere installation, where the real crunch comes in car exhaust pollution. It's obvious that if a control device is attached to an engine, the device may perform as cantankerously as the engine.

This is also borne out by service personnel in local car dealerships. One major dealer

"Non-leaded" gasoline advertisements have proliferated in the last few months, but they have been accompanied by warnings that new additives to compensate for the lead loss may be equally harmful.

Ford's December 1970 issue of Dealer, however, seems to reveal some frustration over the pressure and the task of relieving it.

The earlier calm and con-

It makes sense also that without a fast and accurate testing device at the provincial car testing stations, all the devices in creation won't stop air pollution by car exhaust. If exhaust testing took three minutes per car at the station in Sannich the time system of the provincial statements deny ford is dragging its feet.

The earlier calm and confident articles with titles like "Air Pollution" in which curt and slightly disgrunted statements deny ford is dragging its feet.

Search Warrant Needed to Cut Open Murder Suspect

WASHINGTON (WP) — The average person would probably consider it a favor if the government offered free surgery to remove a bullet from his arm.

But not James Lee Crowder, 18, who calls the offer an "invasion of privacy" and was in court this week to fight off the favor.

The problem seen by Crowder and his lawyer, Robert Bennett, is the government's motive: If the bullet should match certain others they have, Crowder might be indicted for first-degree murder.

arrested in connection with the Dec. 18 death of Dr. James E. Bowman, a dentist, who was shot in his basement office here.

Dr. Bowman died of bullet wounds from his own gun, according to police laboratory reports, presumably after a struggle with two people intending to rob him.

If it can be proved that the dentist shot and wounded Crowder in the arm and leg, the U.S. Attorney's office says, it may also be provable that Crowder shot and killed the dentist. Assistant U.S. Attorney Gregory C. Brady

Despite the assurance of Dr. Marcus P. Goumas, chief medical officer at D.C., jall, that it would not hurt, Bennett protested vehemently.

A lively debate between him and Curran ensued.

Bennett contended that no American court had ever before permitted such explorations for bullets.

"They're asking you to cut into a man's body," Crowder's lawyer complained.

The judge rose to leave, with Bennett still proclaiming his objections: "This is an operation, your honor. This is not popping a pimple on a

Maplettes Overpower Grief-Stricken Rivals

Mike Shabaga spent much of Thursday cussing his favorite subject - hockey. This is understandable as Mike is here to do just that as coach of the Victoria Cougars of the B.C. Junior Hockey League. And not surprisingly already he ach, period."

Now Mike isn't about to sweep the dressing room floor an with a new broom this late in the season or change the ugar habits overnight either. Not if he can help it, or ess they need improving on.

"What more can a new coach ask," he enthused." "They in first place, and is this ever different than coming to a b with a 7 and 53 record!"

"I dont anticipate any problems," he added, "especially irst impressions mean anything." Mike had just met some the players and had been impressed with their attitude and . To which a listener remarked: "You haven't seen the hig s yet."

But lest there be a laxity in the thinking of the Cougars, seware. Because if Mike isn't going to act until he can locate what he believes are the proper areas to attack, he has some houghts the players might dwell on.

"I'll take a look ... and if I find the forwards aren't going into the corners ... they will ...," and besides, he's going to get the complete book on all the players from his predecessor, Ron Maxwell

Mike didn't say so, but Cougar fans may find they have a iger by the tail. Because Mike can be a heller, too, if things tren't going right. But a heller with a sense of humor — not at the time, but later, as at a press conference.

It was idle talk time as Mike mused that at one game he deared the benefi of all excess material, including the entire tick rack. "What did the referee de?" someone asked. "Nothing," said Mike. "I just waved my finger at the trainer and said 'naughty, naughty."

A half truth, perhaps, but a small insight into a former pro, world amateur star, and last spring the first choice even is the Cougar coach. "And do you know what," he obunteered as to the future (and perhaps his well being until a gets to know Victoria better.)

"I'll tell you this," he said. "I've already got myself an seistant," he laughed.
"Dale Pennock (injured Cougar defenceman) will be on he bench beside me."

Mike wasn't taking any chances. Pennock is 66" and veights over 200 pounds. Shabaga is 5'8" and new in town.

Tonight's songs include "Because," "Get Me to the Church on Time," "My Funny Valentine," "Love Me Tender" and "What Is This Thing Called Love?"

SPECIALA 7:30 p.m., Channels 7 and 12. "He's Your Dog, Charlie Brown" (rerun). The kids get another look tonight at Snoopy's trials and tribulations after Charlie Brown sends him back to the Daisy Hill Puppy Farm for a refresher

THE ANDY WILLIAMS SHOW, 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. Faces and voices from the past pop up tonight as Ozzie and Harriet Nelson and Frankie Vallie and the Four Seasons make an appearance. Jonathan Winters and The Carpenters, the hottest new singing group going, also are guests.

A NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY SPECIAL. 3 h.m., Channels 7 and 12. "The Great Mojave Desert." fonight's special explores the beauties and hazards of the trid, rocky and mysterious place the Indians called "the land that supports no man." You will see Scotty's Castle, a prawling, Spanish-style mansion built during the Gold Rush lays by Walter P. Scott, a trick rider with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show. You will hear stories of the fabled Silver Queen Mine and see ghost towns like Rhyolite which once had three railroads, 10 hotels, 56 saloons and an opera house. Writer and hiker Colin Fletcher points out the surprises and acceptions of the desert on a camping trip, Joseph Campanella narrates.

PEARL BAILEY SHOW. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. Pearl tiley, as an actress and singer, has been a major show siness figure for years. Tonight Pearl, Robert Goulet and nes, Hines and Dad pay a special tribute to Miss Waters. A ecial treat: Miss Waters sings "Cabin in the Sky" and "His

SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES. 8:30 p.m., mannel 5. "A Patch of Blue" (1965) brings together Oscar-inners Sidney Politier (best actor in 1963 for "Lilies of the leld") and Shelley Winters (best supporting actress in 1959 or "Diary of Anne Frank"). As a shrewish, insensitive nother in this film, Miss Winters won her second Oscar, toltier plays a young newspaperman who befriends a blind 18-ear-old girl (Elizabeth Hartman) and teaches her to become elf-reliant despite the antagonism of her mother (Miss Inters). Ivan Dixon and Wallace Ford appear as Mark alfe and Ole Pa.

MANNIX. 10 p.m., Channel 7. Pro-basketball fans get an off-court look at two fledgling performers in front of the camera: Lew Alcindor of the Milwaukee Bucks and Gail Goodrich of the Los Angeles Lakers. In the story, a college basketball star disappears and his father hires Mannix (Mike Connors) to find him. Mannix becomes suspicious when the father insists he keep the investigation secret.

Sunday

SUZUKI ON SCIENCE. 2 p.m., Channel 2. Extinction is topic this week, as University of British Columbia eticist Dr. David Suzuki discusses scientific efforts to long life and threatened species of animals. This is the GUNSMOKE. 5:30 p.m., Channels 6 and 8. Director Robert Totten comes out from behind the camera to guest star as a man who accidentally kills a prospector. When he takes the man's gold and mule and comes to Dodge City posing as a prospector who struck it rich, Arthur Hunnleutt, as Urjah, an old friend of the dead man, starts asking susstions.

WONDERFUL WORLD OF DISNEY, 6 p.m., Channel 2; 7:30, Channel 5. Conclusion of the two-part "Bayou Boy." Jeannot (Mitch Vogel) and his cousin Claude (Mike Lookinland) use a cherm from Charbot (Percy Rodrigues) and a crude decoy to trap the vicious alligator who protects the bayou. While the boys are trying to salvage the lost silver bell, the alligator breaks free and attacks. Charbot overpowers the reptile, but not before it knocks Jeannot mechanicus with a slap of its tail. Also starring are John McIntire and Jeannette Nolan.

THE FBI. 8 p.m., Channel 4. "Death Watch." A Marine sergeant (Richard Jaeckel) is critically wounded in an isolated area of his base. Then weapons are stolen from the armory and the FBI discovers matching fingerprints in both places. Inspector Erskine (Efrem Zimbalist Jr.)—goes after gun-runners selling stolen arms to extremists. Also starring are Glenn Corbett, Diane Keaton and Frank Hotchkiss.

SUNDAY NIGHT MUVIE, Sp.m., Channel 4. Fandsature Voyage" (1966) (rerun), starring Stephen Boyd, Raquel Welch, Edmond O'Brien, Donald Pleasence, William Redfield and Arthur Kennedy. Based on Issac Asimov's science-fiction thriller, the film version gets bogged down between Boyd's overstated masculinity and Miss Welch's obviously-displayed forming the formula of the story and the starting and control of the story and the femininity. The story has merit: a submarine and crew are miniaturized and injected into the blood stream of a brain-damaged scientist. The movie doesn't achieve the promise of the novel but it's entertaining.

BONANZA. 9 p.m., Channel 5, "The Reluctant American." Take a good look at Daniel Massey tonight—he's the son of Raymond Massey. As the manager of a neighboring ranch, he accuses the Cartwrights of rustling cattle. Mitch Vogel, who appeared earlier this evening on "Wonderful World of Disney," is Jamie.

MASTERPIECE THEATRE. 9 p.m.; Channel 9. "The First Churchills: The Protestant Wind." John Churchill's loyalty to King James II is severely tested by the king's determination to destroy the Protestants. John decides he must support William of Orange and the Revolution of 1688.

THE BOLD ONES. 10 p.m., Channel 5. Karen Valentine stars tonight in "Tender Predator" as a husband-hunting cirl who commits herself to Craig Institute. E. G. Marshall, David Hartman and John Saxon star.

NET FANFARE. 10 p.m., Channel 9. The Vienna Philharmonic makes its American television debut tonight under the baton of Philadelphia's Eugene Ormandy and featuring pianist Rudolph Serkin as guest soloist. Recorded in Vienna, the orchestra performs Beethoven and Mozart's Concerto No. 21 in C Major.

PRIESTS SUPPORT OPTIONAL CELIBACY

TORONTO (CP) — Optional celibacy for priests received a vote of support by the Central Conference of Priests, representing English-speaking priests in Ontario and Quebec.

After voting in favor of the option, the conference said it will urge delegates to the 1971 Vatican Synod to present their recommendations.

The conference proposed that persons already married and of mature age be permitted to join the priesthood and that married priests be allowed to continue their role in the priesthood.

CZECH ACTOR Vladimir Valenta (right) plays a Czech immigrant in Vancouver who has a brush with the police, in Sunday's episode of The Manipulators (9 p.m., Channels 2 and 6). In a supporting role as his sister is Judith Radu. Valenta left Czechoslovakia in 1968 at the time of Little Egypt is the great grand-daughter of the original Little Egypt whose sultry looks and exotic dancing created racing pulses and heavy breathing in the balcony at the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893. The present day Little Egypt will be seen as Orpah the temptress in NBC's Hallmark Hall of Fame production of Pad dy Chayevsky's play "Gideon" next month.

Despite the ruffled blouse, the tiny mini skirt and the boots, the effect is somehow less that of a overripe desert plum than of an enthusiastic, well brought up Brooklyn girl — which is exactly what she is.

Her parents are Lebanese, and she started at a very early age dancing for her family and later at church benefits and Arab gatherings. She takes her dancing seriously, and draws an emphatic line between what she does and what a stripper does.

"This kind if dancing is folk dancing," she said firmly. "It's an ethnic thing. It's like the Irish doing a jig. When it's done at house parties, for instance, there's no feeling of it's being, well, sexy. And of course you don't wear those bare costumes. Women do it in their regular clothes.

"People call it beily dancing, but the Greeks would call it Greek, the Armenians would call it Greek, the Armenians would call it Armenian and so forth. The Arabs do it, the Egyptians do it. All your nationalities in and around the Middle Eastern countries do it.

Helmcken CBC Radio Topic

The memoirs of Dr. John Sebastian Helmcken, who alved and worked in Victoria from 1850 to 1920 will be broadcast in two hour-long CBC-AM radio programs on Pebruary 17 and March 17 at 7 p.m. PST.

Prepared by Vancouver actor and writer Peter Haworth, the two programs are produced by Imbert Orchard for the CBC radio series, "Midweek." They will be broadcast under the title, "The Old Doctor."

What kind of a place was the colony of British Columbia that elected to join Canada? In background and history it was very different from the other colonies which had already formed a new nation. Were he alive, few people could give a better picture than Dr. John Sebastian Helmcken, who came out to Fort Victoria in 1850 as the Hudson Bay Company's and beginnings of social life as families arrived, we hear about his courtship and marriage, and his election to the Legislative Assembly.

Part Two will deal with the years between the Gold Rush and Confederation. The intention is to open up a window

Virgin Islands Not So Pure

(AP) - The Virgin Islands, U.S. possession in the Caribbean, have a healthy economy, with unemployment at only 1% per cent and the highest per capita income in the Caribbean at $2,800.

But the islands are beginning to pay the price of SUSPECT TRIO prosperity. Crime, almost un- A half dozen women heard of not too many years ago, is up and the under-manned police force is hard

"The Virgin Islands are changing," admits Robert A. Ellison, a Negro lawyer and a former New York City police detective, "and we haven't adjusted to it."

Island officials, concerned about the crimes, say they are a byproduct of progress as well as a reflection of increasing orime in the mainland U.S.

Admittedly the community is not the same as it was 10.

"Admittedly the community is not the same as it was 10 or 20 years ago," says Melvin H. Evans, the first Negro governor elected under a U.S. flag.

"But people should not expect to do here what they wouldn't think of doing in their own hometown."

Evans and other officials complain the islands are getting an undeserved reputation from reports linking the crime rise with Black Power. The white population makes up only 15 per cent of the estimated 30,000 population in the U.S. Virgin Islands. Thus it stands to reason that many of those involved in crime are black.

Tiny Malta Pulls Tourists

VALLETTA — Malta, 95 square miles, smaller than Antigua, not much more than half the size of Barbados, is one of the world's most interesting islands for the tourist.

Hannibal is said.

Hannibal is said to have been born in Malta and St. Paul was shipwrecked here in 60 A.D. on the way to his trial in R. o.m.e. He introduced Christianity guring his three-month stay, converting the Roman governor of the day, Publius, who later became the first Bishop of Malta.

Malta has been a habitat of man-for at least 6,000 years and has been occupied by the Phoenicians, Carthaginians, Romans, Arabs, Normans, Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, the French and the British. In 1964 it became an independent member of the British Commonwealth.

The island can easily be reached out of Canada daily—flying Air Canada to London and switching there to British European Airways. The direct London-Valletta flight by Trident takes 2 hours, 50 minutes.

Anyone who likes to try his hand at aerial photography should get a window seat on the right side of his plane when boarding in London. The island is noted for its clear, smog-free air and the descent into Luqa airport is just right for some perfect shots of the island capital of Valletta and the magnificent Grand Harbor, widely regarded as Europe's finest natural port.

Although Malta is only one of five Maltese Islands (in total they cover 122 square miles, half the size of Metropolitan Toronto), it is the main one and by far the largest. The others are Gozo, 26 square miles, Comino, almost one square miles, and two uninhabite and for the Mediterranean, 140 miles from mainland Europe (less than 60 from Sicily), 180 from Africa, more than 1,100 miles east of Gibraltar and almost as many west of Suez.

Valletta, the chief attraction with tourists, was built by the Knights of St. John (now usually known as the Knights of Malta, and to the Maltese simply as "the Knights") after they had repulsed the Turks in a bitter

The Knights ruled Malta and contributed materially to its wealth and culture until 1798, when they were ousted by Napoleon. This put an end to their rule but the organization, presently headquartered in Rome, is represented on the island today by an ambassador.

The British came in when the Maltese appealed to Admiral Nelson for help in getting rid of Napoleon's soldiers.

Valletta is built on a milelong promontory rising out of deep water and is flanked by Grand Harbor on one side and by Marsam useetto or Marsamxett Harbor on the other. This is a well-planned town, possessing some interesting shops and a number of buildings that are very much worth seeing, including the Co-Cathedral of St. John, the most important edifice on the 1sland; the National Museum, and the restored Manoel Theater which was originally built as a court theater by the Knights in 1731. Today it is one of the oldest theaters in Europe.
Operas, plays, ballets and concerts are staged there from October through to may.
But Valletta is by no means all of Malta and there is much to see — and do — outside of the capital.

Among the other attractions are the archaeological sights which include an underground temple three storeys deep that is believed to have been built around 2,400 B.C., and the remains of megalithic temples dating back to the third millennium B.C.

Animal remains have been found showing that the island

and birds that have been
found showing that the island was once the home of dwarf ponies, giant land tortoises,

and birds that have been
extinct for 170,000 years.

Other interesting sights include the old island capital of Mdina that was first built in 700 B.C., St. Paul's Cathedral in Mdina, the grotto where St. Paul lived during his brief stay here, the fishing fleet at Marsaxlokk, the Blue Grotto which many visitors consider to be superior to the one in Capri, and the famous Church of

If you're looking for good reasons to buy a new ear, look at this 1971 Buick LeSabre. We offer you reasons you can believe in. Like power front disc brakes. They're standard equipment, even though LeSabre is the lowest-priced big Buick you can buy. And there's more. Buick will keep its good looks and value longer because it gives you new open rocker panels that help prevent salt and water from building up.
Then there's GM's complete safety package that includes such features as rugged side-guard beams and a cargo-guard barrier between passengers and the trunk cargo for increased occupant protection. Overhead, there's a new type of roof. It's really two roofs in one to help absorb sound for a quieter ride. And even Buick's famous AccuDrive front suspension has been improved for more precise handling on bumpy roads. Those are just a few reasons for making LeSabre your next car. Your Buick dealer is waiting to give you the whole story, including the run-down on Buick's all-new Centurion series. See him and his new Buicks soon.

Everything's happening around Standard! . . .

We dropped in to Standard Furniture the other day for a chat with Mr. Tom Denny . who told us all about what's going on the 700 Block Yates . . . and how happy the Merchants! Assn. is its get started on re-building the block . . Mr. D.'s enthusiasm was contagious as he described the block's soon-to-be new look . . new road surfacing . . new curbs 'with indents for bus and loading zones . new lights . attractive planters . strategically placed seats for shoppers to rest and view the passing scene . Pedestrian passage right through to Johnson St. where the big new parkade is being built . . Two new floors being added to the View St. parkade . . . Really sounds as if this block will become the hub of downtown Victoria . . . and Standard Furniture is pretty excited about its ahare in bringing all this about! . . Lots of excitement about new arrivals in the store, too . . . A gorgeous new range of bedspreads from New York coming to the drapery dept. . . Lots of new carpets made especially for Standard . And Roland de M. Brown is leaving for Italy to purchase period reproductions . . which, in due course, will grace the fine furniture departments at Standard! . . . ## Science of Shopping Explained

ESTIMATE COST.

Estimate exactly what you're spending per serving. This is especially necessary with meats, poultry and fish. You may find that a leaner cut of meat at a higher perpound price is more economical than cheaper meat heavy with bone and fat. Almost all basic cookbooks give guidelines on how much to buy per serving.

in Turkey.

Traditionally, the fee is paid by the bridegroom's family to the family of the bride. Huseyin Koc, mayor of a village northeast of Ankara, says the going price is 15,000 lira, equivalent to $1,000.

"When I was married 30 years ago it was 280 lira," he recalls.

Other villagers put the current price between $600 and $1,200. All agree it has jumped sharply from last year. The practice is illegal and punishable by six months in jail. But if all Turkish families who paid or received one were arrested a large percentage of Turkey's 36 million population would be behind bars.

Instead of meat on the daily menu, substitute eggs or cheese now and then. One egg or one ounce of cheese equals the protein in one ounce of meat, fish or poultry. Color of egg shell makes no difference in good value of an egg. Buy what's cheaper.

Evaporated milk runs cheaper but is as nourishing as regular milk for creamy puddings, home and de ice cream and as a topping for cereals instead of cream. Use evaporated skimmed milk too.

evaporated skimmed milk too.

Cook vegetables quickly in as little water as possible, just until tender, to conserve nutrients. Use the water for soups, gravies or sauces.

In buying meat, you save by buying a larger cut for several meals ahead. Plan these meals. Create leftover ideas. Final bits of meat can be combined with beans or protein-rich legumes for hearty soups, casseroles, small pies.

similar to the Roman Catholic one of plenary indulgence."

I raised a puzzled eyebrow. He admitted that he wasn't very clear on it either, but that it seems that a plenary indulgence is somehow supposed to remit in full the temporal punishment assigned for the commission of a minor sin. And he added that at the end of the Second Vatican Council Pope Paul declared that a plenary indulgence could be granted to anyone who hears three lectures on the Council's achievements.

I countered with a discipline that might get him and his congregation off the hook of sin in failing to observe each year such significant feativals as Flower Sunday, Battle-of-the-Atlantic Sunday, Quinquagesima, and Mental Health Sunday; I suggested he arrange for his people to hear a trombone solo of "The Old Rugged Cross," followed the next Sunday by a quartet singing "In the Garden" to tremulous organ accompaniment.

* * * By then M.I.F. was quite unmelancholy, and his eyes were sparkling. He dredged out of his astonishing memory the fact that during the Middle Ages an indulgence was sometimes given for listening to sermons. This led to a rather uncharitable discussion of the qualifications of some of our colleagues for the Rt. Rev. F. Roy Gartrell, Bishop of the Diocese of British Columbia, the Anglican Church of Canada, will be guest preacher at First United Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

By LOUIS CASSELS

UPI Religion Writer.
It's easy to criticize the church.

At' any time and in any place, men can justly accuse the church of failing to live up to its own teachings. The charge is always correct, to some degree, because the church proclaims ideals of unselfishness, love and service which no group of human beings can perfectly achieve.

As an antidote to complacency and a spur to greater effort, criticism of the church can be a healthy thing. When it's overdone, it becomes merely destructive.

It's one thing to say the church has shortcomings, which it certainly has. It's quite a different thing to suggest—as many now are doing—that the church is first act of his ministry was a processor.

virtually impossible.

Jesus recognized this. The first act of his ministry was to call together a little band of disciples to be his constant companions. It is quite clear from the gospels that Jesus didn't look upon his disciples merely as students to learn and relay his teaching. They were his friends, He needed them, just as they needed him. Ancient Organ Still Plays

And that, of course, is what the church still is supposed to be—not just an institution with worthy objectives, but a fellowship, a brotherhood, an Bergink, who has been organist and choirmaster since 1968, reports the restoration will be complete by Wednesday, when he will be giving the first of a new series of organ recitals. Beginning at 8 p.m., the program will include singing by the Norfolk House sehool choir, directed by Miss Gladys Pearcy, and a solo from Haydn's "Creation" by Mrs. Nan Long.

GOAL OF 10,000 PEOPLE

Job-Training Plan Goes Ahead URGED FOR PROVINCE

Phil Gaglardi said Friday his department is going ahead with plans to put 10,000 people into industrial and municipal training programs this year.

Gaglardi told the legislature his plan will first employ people at a Vancouver com-pany and in the municipality of Langley.

About 20 other municipalities, including Kamloops, should enter the scheme in the near future, he said in an

The minister defended his department's controversial lob-finding agency, the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen, saying it has a 3½-to-1 lob-finding ration—and does not duplicate services provided by Canada Manpower,

In a letter to the Canadian Radio and Television Commission the Victoria Low-Income Group has asked that the transcript of an Aug. 27 Vancouver radio show be sent from Ottawa.

The Low-Income Group earlier had been told a copy of the transcript could be obtained by sending a representative to Ottawa.

The program in question was a CKWX open-line show with announcer Ed Murphy. Taking part in the show Aug. 27 were Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi, Ron Price, director of the Victoria office of the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen, and Walter Olszewski, president of the Low-Income Group.

The Low-Income Group alleges that "unethical broad-casting" occurred when Gaglardi was allowed to read parts of a confidential file on Olszewski over the air.

This should be done on a sliding scale based upon ability to pay, he said. The goal of these two proposals, he said, is to make home purchases available to everyone in Canada with an income of $4,000 or more.

Current mortgage availability and interest rates require an income of $8,000 a year to buy a house.

Small Parks Urged

The government's $15 million special parks development fund should be broken into $150,000 units for 100 small park projects, Dean Smith (SC - North Peace River) said Friday.

If this cannot be done, said the Socred backbencher, at least half of the fund should go to small projects.

Smith also told the government the Fort St. John area of his riding has "highway problems til they're coming out of my ears," but he said he expected government attention to them.

He said he was pleased to see mention in the throne speech that snowmobile legis-lation will come this session. Young people are using these machines, he said, some of which are capable of travelling up to 80 miles per hour.

As an appropriate centennial project, Smith proposed development of the northern part of the province.

CITY SLICKERS

"Too many British Columbians," he said; "are too buy trying too keep up with the Americans or too busy trying to imitate the city slickers."
And if B.C. neglects development of its north and leaves it by default to the Americans, it will be its own fault, he said.

He predicted the provincial population would double before the turn of the century, and said most of this growth sould occur in the northern regions of B.C.

B.C. Hydro announces CHANGES IN TRANSIT SERVICE

The new agreement between B.C. Hydro and the Amalgamated Transit Union will add further large increases to the already high transit losses. Before deducting the Provincial Government subsidy of $2 million the loss this year will be $4.4 million. Unchecked, the annual deficit would increase to more than $8 million by 1973.

To help reduce these mounting losses Hydro plans a number of service adjustments. All have been carefully considered with the objective of maintaining the best possible standard of transit service at the lowest cost for the greatest number of people.

B.C. Hydro will continue to maintain a good standard of service during rush hour periods plus a basic service in other hours for regular transit users including senior citizens, students, shoppers and others. Most changes apply to lightly patronized services and will not affect the majority of the bus-riding

Police Court

On Amendment A 31-year-old Esquimalt serviceman who pleaded guilty to committing an indecent assault at knifepoint on a 15-year-old babysitter was sentenced Friday by Judge William Osler to 18 months in jail.

Ostler said in view of the man's previous good record battle for an amendment to the g o v e rampent's reorganization bill.

Proposed by Ran Harding (NDP—Kootenay W e s t), the amendment would add the word "national" to a clause directing the proposed department of the environment to achieve "objectives or standards relating to environmental quality, or to control pollution." The commons arose for the weekend without voting on the amendment.

Mr. Harding said he wanted the environment minister to set the denary board, said it is the government v i e w that the change would in fact narrow the new minister's powers.

On Monday, the Commons debates a Conservative motion condemning the government's economic and agricultural policies.

As well as setting up an environment department, the reorganization bill would allow the prime minister to establish five new ministries of state for specific purposes and appoint an unlimited number of ministers of state to aid other cabinet ministers.

The bill has been getting detailed study in committee of the whole for several days.

AFFIRM NEED

Alb'MPs who spoke affirmed the need for federal powers to establish n a t i o n a l pollution standards.

Mr. Drury said that "the government highly favors the creation of national standards."

But the amendment would restrict the minister's power to seek international pollution agreements on pollution agreement (NDP-Regina-Lake Centre) said the amendment was necessary to establish federal leadership in the pollution fight and permit the government to set and enforce national standards.

Gerald Baldwin, Conservative House leader, called it essential for the federal government to stake its claim over jurisdiction in pollution control.

David Mac D on ald (PC-Egmont) said that without the annendment there was the spec-

England Leaves Pitch Under Beer-Can Blast

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter)

— England captain Ray Illingworth led his team off the field today when fast bowler John Show was peppered with beer cans on the second day of the seventh and last cricket test against Australia here.

The can-throwing incident marred a tense day's cricket during which Australia battled to 235 for seven—a first-innings lead of 51.

The incident occurred after a ball from Snow hit Australian batsman Terry Jenner on the side of the head. Jenner was helped from the field, later to have a stitch put in a cut at the back of his head, and umpire Lou Rowam warned Snow for bowling too many bumpers.

speak of the church as an institution whose disappearance would do no great harm and might even be beneficial to the furtherance of the ideals and way of life associated with Jesus Christ.

ated with Jesus Christ.

History says otherwise.
From the time of Jesus until now, Christian living has been an adventure in which men and women have found it necessary to have company. It is difficult enough to be a real Christian when you have people around you who share your commitment and conviction, people on whom you can rely for support and encouragement, and who rely in turn on you. Without such mutual reinforcement, fidelity to the way of Christ is virtually impossible.

Jesus recognized this. The

Jesus recognized this. The first act of his ministry was to call together a little band of disciples to be his constant of disciples to be his constant companions. It is quite clear from the gospels that Jesus didn't look upon his disciples merely as students to learn and relay his teaching. They were his friends. He needed them, just as they needed him.

And that, of course, is what

And that, of course, is what the church still is supposed to be—not just an institution with worthy objectives, but a fellowship, a brotherhood, an ongoing community which transcends all barriers of time and space.

The mission of this community is two-fold, and is plainly spelled out in the Bible. It is to nurture, sustain and instruct those already included in its membership. And it is to reach out with love and humility and render

And it is to reach out with love and humility and render whatever service it can to the rest of mankind.

How well the church performs its mission at any particular place and time depends not on how large and powerful and rich it is, but rather on the degree to which its members are genuinely committed to the role of a servant community.

There always have been, and always will be, some men and wo men conspicuously attached to the Christian million special parks development fund should be broken into $150,000 units for 100 small park projects, Dean Smith (SC - North Peace River) said Friday.

Small Parks Urged

If this cannot be done, said the Socred backbencher, at least half of the fund should go to small projects.

go to small projects.

Smith also told the government the Fort St. John area of his riding has "highway problems til they're coming out of my ears," but he said he expected government attention to them.

hour.

As an appropriate centennial project, Smith proposed development of the northern part of the province.

B.C. Hydro announces CHANGES IN TRANSIT SERVICE

The new agreement between B.C. Hydro and the Amalgamated Transit Union will add further large increases to the already high transit losses. Before deducting the Provincial Government subsidy of $2 million the loss this year will be $4.4 million. Unchecked, the annual deficit would increase to more than $8 million by 1973.

To help reduce these mounting losses Hydro plans a number of service adjustments. 'All have been carefully considered with the objective of maintaining the best possible standard of transit service at the lowest cost for the greatest number of people.

B.C. Hydro will continue to maintain a good standard of service during rush hour periods plus a basic service in other hours for regular transit users including senior citizens, students, shoppers and others. Most changes apply to lightly patronized services and will not affect the majority of the bus-riding public.

The Following Service Changes Are Being Introduced

- Sunday and Holiday Pass discontinued
- immediately. • Hourly service after 6 p.m. on weekdays, effective March 12.
- Hourly service between 10 a.m. and 9 p.m. on Sundays and holidays, effective March 12.
  - Saturday service will start one hour later on all routes, effective March 12.

New timetables will be available before the March 12 changes go into effect. Transit information may be obtained by phoning 382-9261 between 8 a.m. and 11 p.m. In addition to the above changes, every effort will be made to reduce overtime, and the entire service will be examined for means of further reducing costs with as little inconvenience as possible to the public.
